

SERVICES IN MEMORY OF MRS HELEN KELLEY

The Presbyterian church was crowded Saturday afternoon by friends and neighbors, who gathered for the services in memory of Mrs. Helen F. Kelley. The Woman's Relief Corps, to which Mrs. Kelley had belonged for many years, attended in a body, and some 14 G. A. R. members gathered from Kalispell and its vicinity and from the Soldiers' Home to pay tribute. The latter served as honorary pallbearers, and the Relief corps conducted its beautiful burial service at the grave.

The altar rail at the church was banked with beautiful flowers, among them many roses. A large basket of these in the center was the gift of Mrs. Kelley's son in Pennsylvania.

A quartet composed of Misses Emma Chester and Caroline Walchli and Messrs. Andrew Dunsire and A. P. Bruce, sang "Lead Kindly Light" and also "Jesus, Savior, Pilot Me," favorites of the deceased, Mrs. G. M. Fisher accompanying. Tennyson's "Crossing the Bar," another favorite, was quoted by Dr. B. Scott Bates in his sermon on "Christ, Our Pilot." Mr. Bates was assisted in the service by Rev. G. M. Fisher.

Pall bearers were Albert and Henry Sales, Charles Logan, Charles Kelley, C. D. O'Neill, and William Switzer.

Obituary

Mrs. Kelley's maiden name was Farr. She was born in Windom Township, Pennsylvania, November 18, 1851. Five years later the family moved to Mehoopany Township, where she grew up and resided until her marriage to John L. Gyle, February 18, 1873. She then lived at Auburn until Mr. Gyle's death in 1906.

Three children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Gyle: Robert Gyle of Wilkesebarre, Pennsylvania; Mrs. John Switzer of Thompson River; and Frank Gyle, who died more than nine years ago. Ten grandchildren and three great-grandchildren survive.

The deceased came to Kalispell from Auburn in 1910 and since that time she had passed most of her time here. She was married in March 1910, to Eugene E. Kelley, who died four years later.

Mrs. Kelley's years were full of good deeds. She devoted her life to care of her deceased son's daughter and to service in the community. Besides her work in the Relief corps for the past few years she had also been a member of the G. A. R. and held the offices of adjutant and quartermaster at the time of her death. She was a member of a church in the east and a few years ago transferred to the local Presbyterian church.
