13 Jan 1931 pg 7- Trentor

People of the community were grieved Friday, when word was received from Polson of the sudden death of Grandma Trentor, as she was affectionately called by her many friends. The body was brought from Polson Sunday afternoon and after a brief service conducted by the Ladies' Aid of Bigfork, was interred in the Bear Dance cemetery. Besides her husband, William H. Trentor who died February 22, 1909.

Julia Dew was born August 29, 1848 in Williams County, Ohio but moved when a child with her parents to Galesburg, Illinois where she grew to womanhood. Mr. and Mrs. Trentor were pioneers in the valley, moving here from Iowa in April, 1895, and homesteading on the lake shore near Yellow Bay, where she did her share during the hard days of hewing a home out of the wilderness. She leaves to mourn her loss a grandson, Lee Bohannon, and a great grand son, Albert Hixon, both of whom she raised from infancy when their mothers were taken by death; one sister, Mrs. Rachel Walker of Enid, Oklahoma, also survives.

Two of her brothers served all through the civil war, one George Dew, went as a sharp shooter with General Sherman on his famous march to the sea.
