CORA M. MORGAN

(Contributed)

Cora May Johnson was born to Eli and Lucretia Johnson on October 7, 1867, in Lakeland, Minnesota. At the age of 19 she was married to Charles Bolton, younger son of the Earl of Bolton of England. Three years later he passed away in Minneapolis. On December 21, 1889, she married Frank M. Morgan in Chicago. After a brief wedding trip abroad, they returned to live at Great Falls. In April, 1891, the family came to the Flathead valley where they resided in old Demersville until it was possible to move to Kallispell. Here they owned and for a time operated the West Hotel, remembered by early residents. Because of poor health they moved to Spokane in 1902 and after eight years there they moved to California, eventually locating in Montrose where Mrs. Morgan resided until she was taken to the General hospital in Los Angeles suffering from cancer. Five months later she was moved to Winrose Rest Home in Tujunga, California, where she passed away on September 12, 1942.

Funeral services were held at the Forest Lawn chapel and the body interred in the adjoining cemetery at Glendale beside that of her husband, Frank Morgan, who died on May 4, 1934. There was a great profusion of flowers and many friends present from Los Angeles, Hollywood, Glendale and Montrose. The only immediate relative present was a nephew, George E. Johnson, all other relatives residing too far away to attend.

Mrs. Morgan was well known among the old timers in Flathead valley and liked by everyone, as she had an unusually cheerful disposition.

Surviving relatives are a daughter, Mrs. Alberta Gardner, three grandchildren, one great grandchild and a sister-in-law, Mrs. Hiram Johnson, all of Kallispell; one grandchild and two great grandchildren of Spokane, nephews, George H. Johnson of Whitefish and Ray Johnson of Cutbank, two nephews and a niece in California and several other nieces and nephews in the east.
