Mary Haldeman Armstrong, 87 1-9-89

Mary Haldeman Armstrong, 87, died of natural causes early Friday morning at Brendan House where she had resided since August 1985.

She was born Jan. 19, 1901, in New Alexandria, Pa., the daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. James Newton Armstrong.

Miss Armstrong earned a bachelor of arts degree in English from Mount Holyoke College, a master's degree from Columbia University, and continued with art studies at The Cape School of Art in Provincetown-on-Cape Cod, Mass.

She received her speech training in graduate courses at the University of Southern California, the Speech Institute and Fellowship in London and the Central School of Speech at Oxford, England.

She taught high school English in New Jersey and in California for 40 years. She also coached debate and taught choral reading.

Her avocation was spelunking. She and her nephew, Dr. James H. Armstrong, were the first Americans to explore LaBaume Latrone, Bara-Bahau and other caves in southern France and Spain which contained pre-historic art more than 40,000 years old. She took photographs of such world authorities as l'Abbe Breuil, l'Abbe Glory, Robert de Joly and Norbert Casteret and their discoveries.

She then took those photographs on many lecture tours in Europe, the United States and South America. The authorities had also discovered "The Temples," amazing storehouses of prehistoric art, which Miss Armstrong photographed and gave lectures about.

She was admitted as a member to the Societe Prehistorique Francaise, the Societe Speliologique de la France and the National Speleological Society.

She lectured on prehistoric art before the Fine Arts Foundation of Scripps College in Claremont, Calif., Mount Holyoke College, South Hadley, Mass, and also in Europe and in South America.

She was preceded in death by her parents and a brother, the Rev. James N. Armstrong Jr. She is survived by a nephew, Dr. James H. Armstrong and his wife, Dottie, of Kalispell; two nieces, Mrs. Elroy (Mary Louise) Langdell of Shelburne, Vt., and Mrs. Theodore (Deborah D.) Sadowski of Turlock, Calif.

Memorial services will be at 11:30 a.m. Wednesday at First Presbyterian Church in Kalispell, with the Rev. Barry Dawson officiating.

Arrangements are by Weatherford Funeral Home & Crematory, Kalispell.

Memorials are suggested to Habitat for Humanity, Habitat and Church streets, Americus, Ga. 31709.
