Robert Warren Doolittle, 20

Monday, March 8, 1993, dawned brightly and clouded quickly with the death of Robert Warren Doolittle, 20, of Whitefish.

His happy, fearless approach to life cannot be overshadowed by the quick smile and loving nature the Bennington, Vt., native exhibited to all. The strength and agility that was used in his pursuit of the love of the outdoors was a result of his surviving father, Robert Doolittle, of Columbia Falls. The understanding and tenderness of what he found there is reflected in his mother, Priscilla Doolittle, of Whitefish.

Shari Smith and Amity Doolittle of Whitefish are already missing the quick wit and love their brother had for them, and their tears are testimony to the love they had for him.

Bob was a Bulldog duffer who graduated from Whitefish High School in 1990 and took exceptional pride in contributing to his friends and their endeavors.

Aunts, uncles, and friends have been greatly enriched with a short trip with an exceptional young man.

Florence Greene of Woodbury, Conn., maternal grandmother, and Clifford and Ruth Doolittle of West Jefferson, N.C., paternal grandparents, have noticed how much smaller the Big Sky Country is without the asset of young Bobby Doolittle. The tremendous loss of our world is the tremendous gain of another.

In a tribute to Robert, there will be an informal gathering of friends and relatives today from 7-8 p.m. at Austin Funeral Home. On Saturday at 1 p.m., funeral services are planned at the funeral home with the Rev. Keith Beebe of Whitefish Presbyterian Church officiating. Interment will follow at Conrad Memorial Cemetery.

Patrick Doss, 45

Patrick Doss, formerly of Kalispell, died suddenly of a stroke at the age of 46 on July 4, 1993, in Billings.

He was born the son of Mildred Francis Wolfe Doss and Peter William Doss on June 23, 1947, in Billings, where he was raised and educated.

Patrick had an infinite love for the outdoors and a sensitivity to his surroundings that he was able to convey to his family and friends. He was also a dedicated artist.

More formally, Patrick acquired knowledge in mathematics, physics, chemistry and writing, which would later prove invaluable. Due in part to his admiration of a close family friend, John Dempsey, who was pursuing the study of pharmacy at the University of Montana, Patrick decided upon the same career. After graduating from Billings West High School, he entered the University of Montana, and subsequently received the bachelor's of pharmacy degree. He was employed in Kalispell upon graduation and served as the chief pharmacist at Kalispell Regional Hospital as well as at several pharmacies. During the past eight years, he worked in Livingston and Billings, most recently at Wal-Mart.

An enrolled member of the Crow Nation, he was extremely proud of his rich Crow cultural heritage inherited from his father and his late grandmother, Kalichia Bea, known among her Crow People as "Lightning Woman."

He looked for an opportunity to help his Indian people, which resulted in his first formal position in the field of Indian health, in which he served as the executive director of the Montana Indian Health Board in Billings. Patrick was then called upon for service by his own Crow Tribe, first as executive director of the Crow Tribe and later as director of the Crow Office of Mining and Reclamation. He was later assigned the additional responsibility of planning for the health-care needs of the Lodge Grass Community and helped create the Lodge Grass Health Clinic. Working closely with Crow Health Board members, Patrick wrote and later presented landmark testimony in support of the appropriation of federal funds in the amount of $25 million for the construction of a new Crow Replacement Hospital at Crow Agency.

In addition to his father, Peter William Doss, and his stepmother Kay Doss, Patrick is survived by four daughters, Cheyenne Rivers Doss and her mother Caroline Wilson, Autumn Breeze Doss, Serrina Morning Star Doss, Elizabeth Ann Doss and their mother Melinda Sweeney; one brother, Michael Peter Doss; one sister, Penny Lynn Isaak; and one stepbrother and step-sister, Steven Bernhardt and Belinda Wells. He is preceded in death by his mother, Mildred Francis Wolfe Doss, and a sister, Peggy Lee Doss.

The family requests those wishing to make donations to contribute to the education of Patrick's three youngest daughters in care of P.W. Doss, 4204 Bruce, Billings, MT 59101.
