La Verna E. Hall Fine, 82

La Verna E. Hall Fine, 82, died Saturday, Dec. 31, 1994, at her home in Evergreen.

She was born May 14, 1912, in Wamego, Kan., to Dietrick and Gesina Soelster. When she was 3, the family moved to Shepard, Mont., where she later attended Shepard High School. She had to ride 5 miles each way by horseback to attend school and church.

She married Earl Hall on Aug. 2, 1928. They farmed in South Dakota but times were bad so they packed up the Model T and headed to Montana. They spent several years making a living by logging, cutting firewood, harvesting Christmas trees and picking huckleberries to sell. She would do anything to put food on the table for her family, who always came first.

She loved her children and would always insist on cooking them dinner. When she got older, she always had time for her children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren. In fact, she had grandchildren who claimed her even though they weren't relatives. She loved to have children around, sometimes having five or six grandchildren staying with her. She will always be remembered for her perseverance and the ability to make things better than they were. Her heart was as large as the outdoors. She had a God-given gift of love and hospitality and had a special place in her heart for all of her family and friends.

She was preceded in death by her husband, Earl; a daughter, Venicia; and her parents.

Survivors include her husband, Robert "Ed" Fine, of Evergreen; a daughter, Elaine Miller, and sons Donald Hall and Andrew "Andy" Hall, all of Evergreen; 17 grandchildren; 33 great-grandchildren; five great-great-grandchildren; four stepchildren; nine step-grandchildren; and 14 step-great-grandchildren.

Visitation will be Wednesday from noon to 5 p.m. at Buffalo Hill Funeral Home. Services will be held Thursday at 11 a.m. with the Rev. Mike Phillips, of Riverside Alliance Church, officiating. Burial will be at Glacier Memorial Gardens.
