Once for the Air Force and once for her mom and dad back in Ferndale. Virginia was the beloved and dedicated Air Force wife of Robert L. "Bob" Daniel; they were married for almost 54 years. Virginia was known for her honesty, sincerity, kindness and devotion to God and commitment to family. She loved to tinker and was never afraid to fix and repair anything around the house - a gift she certainly got from her dad. She was so content in her life and never seemed to want for anything. She was thrifty, maybe a trait of her mother, and so she loved the excitement of a Mildred Hoyt.

William T. Dawson, 84

William "Bill" T. Dawson, 84, passed away July 28, 2018, after a valiant battle with lung cancer.

Bill was born in Kalispell Nov. 8, 1933, to James, also a Kalispell native, and Sadie (Harding) Dawson. He joined siblings Louise and later Ron. Truly proud of his deep roots in the Flathead Valley, which started in 1902, the Dawsons currently stand at four generations deep and counting.

In 1954 he married his Flathead County High School sweetheart, Virgie Shoemaker, also a Kalispell native. Bill and Virgie raised three children, Michael, Monica and Tony. He joined the Army in 1955 where he worked as a surveyor and served honorably in Korea.

Strong and vibrant to the end, he was a gardener, a golfer, a fisherman, a welder, a veteran, an outdoorsman, a union man, an airplane pilot, huckleberry picker, a father, a grandfather and an exceptionally dedicated husband. Bill was truly a man of many skills. He tried anything that interested him, let nothing stand in the way of his curiosity and succeeded at most of his endeavors. He possessed a mixture of optimism and practicality. With a voice that commanded attention and announced his presence long before he could be seen, Bill had a manner that was both gruff and soft, that followed him wherever he went.

double helical spiral staircase at Many Glacier Hotel. He was honored to be selected to participate in the ribceremony.

Bill was a welcome fixture and a friend to many at the cabinet shop.

He loved to ice-fish and it was his common winter past time with his son-in-law Larry. He was also a passionate golfer and played at least once a week with his buddies. and weekly as the patriarch on the three-generation golf team at Village Greens with his son, Tony and grandson, Gabe.

After his retirement Bill crossed several bucket items off his list. A trip to Washington, D.C., fishing trips to Alaska, a hole-in-one, and his attempt to join the electronic generation. A big fan of emailing friends and family he found online, he also loved buying vehicles on eBay and then traveling across the U.S. for his "good deal." While he was proud of his discoveries, he found no reason to replace his flip phone or update his old desktop computer. It did the job, just like many of the other things in his life that brought him simple ment of the contentment.

Part of that contentment came in the form of his garden. Tomatoes and fruit trees were aplenty, but nothing rivaled his hydrangeas. After entering his finest in the local fair, Bill was awarded several blue ribbons for first place and even a few best-in-show ribbons. bon cutting He proudly displayed his check for a whopping $3 in prize money! Another surprise he dished up in his retirement was the delicious pies he would bake for family gatherings. The smile in his victory and success was a joy we will always remember as it shown clearly in all he did.

Bill is survived by his wife Virgie with whom he celebrated 64 years of marriage. Of all his enduring traits, arguably one of his finest was the uncompromising love and unwavering support he showed for Virgie.

From the deep respect he showed from the earliest years, to the caregiving support he faithfully gave up to the end, we have all gained a valuable lesson from his example.

He is also survived by his brother, Ron (Bonnie): his children, Mike (Ellen), Monica Craven (Larry), and Tony (Lisa); grandchildren, Jessica and Erin, Daniel and Matthew, Ashley, Gabe and Chad; and six great-grandchildren. Loved by many, Bill also leaves behind his favorite nieces, nephew, and his dear golf and fishing buddies.

A funeral Mass will be celebrated at 9 a.m. Saturday, Aug. 25, at St. Matthew's Catholic Church. A reception will follow at the church, then a graveside service at Glacier Memorial Gardens in Kalispell.

As a proud union ironworker, he worked on many projects across Montana including the aluminum plant, Libby Dam, and the "new" hospital in '73. Starting in the late '70s, he and Virgie traveled across the Western states where he worked often as a foreman or superintendent on projects from the deepest missile silos to the tallest buildings on the West Coast. He would often say he retired too soon. He loved his trade.

In his retirement he continued his welding skills for friends, bartering for golf, or for his son's local cabinet shop. His crowning achievement came just last year when he fabricated the entire steel sub-structure for the historical replace-

Norma Kay (Thompson) DeLange, 80

Norma died on Dec. 29, 2017, having been diagnosed with a brain tumor in August.

"Waitress Extraordinaire" was the title that most people gave to Norma DeLange because of her career as the friendliest of waitresses went unanswered. But in the many restaurants she worked in a career spanning more than 40 years, from Vince's Italian Restaurant in West Sacramento, California, to three of San Jose's most famous bistros, Farrell's, Manny's Cellar and Bini's, where she made hundreds of people feel welcome with her imperturbable optimism and her file of jokes. She retired in 1993 without fanfare to care for her ailing mother.

Norma Kay Thompson was born in Glasgow, Montana, on July 20, 1937, on her own mother's 25th birthday. The family moved to Whitefish shortly after her birth where she spent her childhood.

When she was just 13 years old, she fancied that she had fallen in love with an older boy of 18, Ralph DeLange, whom she had met at a "teen" dance. Never mind the age difference or the fact that he already had a steady girlfriend, she was smitten. She was convinced it was fate and confided in her friends that she was someday going to marry him. He paid her no heed in the ensuing vears when he went off to the U.S. Navy in 1951 during the Korean War and her letters for three and a half years she maintained her determination and his name was always at the top of her notebooks. She dated, but all of her suitors soon learned that they were number two.

A chance meeting at another dance while he was home on his leave from the Navy brought them together again and, when her fishhook earring caught him in the nose, she apologized, but soon after he realized that he had indeed been "hooked" and he proposed.

Before graduating from high school, she married Ralph in 1955 and helped her husband obtain his college degree on the GI Bill at the University of Montana in 1959. It was during these years that she worked at various jobs while maintaining a home with two youngsters and assisting him in his homework, a role that he later recalled, "I think she got a better education than I did."

The family moved to West Sacramento, California, in 1963 and to San Jose in 1966.

Throughout those years the family vacationed at Lake Tahoe, a spot that Norma likened to her Rocky Mountain homeland and which she called "my favorite place next to Montana."

After retirement in 1999, Norma and Ralph purchased "our little slice of Paradise," a second home on the Swan River near Bigfork, and spent six months there every year.

Norma and Ralph had a love for travel and they counted themselves lucky to have visited 45 countries 50 states and seven provinces of Canada during a lifetime of roaming the world. During these journeys they forged many enduring friendships with fellow travelers.

One of her great passions was her photo albums. It was a family joke that she could take the and husband Vince, their best of pictures only to discover, upon their development, that the people had no heads!

A Norma trademark was her legendary "homemade bread," as well as her applesauce and huckleberry jam. At Christmastime she would bake over 100 loaves, four at a time, mixed and kneaded by hand, to give to customers at "Manny's Cellar" and friends and neighbors.

Another tradition was "Family Night" Friday dinners. Her "7 bone roast" with beef gravy and all the trimmings was a major and constant hit. She likewise always hosted the holiday dinners with great aplomb. Family was her pride and Norma was preceded in death by her father, Elmer John Thompson; her mother, Margaret "Muggs" Janice (Hewitt) Thompson; her sister, Nancy Jean (Kramer) Ray; and her husband, Ralph Edward DeLange.

She is survived by three daughters, five grandchildren, and three great grandchildren; Denise Earlene DeLange and husband George Calvert, and their daughter, Leslie Calvert; Janice Lillian Barton, her daughter Michelle Luttrell, son-inlaw Jake and grandson Robert, and son, Michael Barton; and Jeanette Louise De Lange-Ortiz daughter and son, Nicole Louise De Lange-Ortiz and Matti Joe De Lange-Ortiz, daughter-in-law, Nadia, granddaughter Everly and grandson Logan; as well as many nieces and nephews and friends.

Maureen A. DeWitt, 76

Maureen Adele DeWitt passed away on this Earth Aug. 21, 2018, during surgery that offered hope for a better future. That thought was in her mind as the procedure began, promising a better life with less discomfort. Always an optimist, energetic and upbeat, she inspired those as well as leading the around her to be the same. God gifted her with beauty, inside and out, leaving those who loved her wanting, because of her passing.

None of us is perfect, and she never claimed to be, but hers was an inspiring life, always trying to improve the lives of others. She was continually reaching out to even the slightest of those she knew, not the least of whom were the employees of the businesses that she frequented, sometimes becoming close friends with those individuals outside of the commercial relationships.

She and her husband of over 55 years, Ward Stark DeWitt, M.D., enjoyed travel throughout the world over their married life, preferably by cruise ship, creating lasting memories not only of the locations, but also of the friends met along the way, passengers and crew alike. Maureen was a "force of nature" who earned the moniker, "Mighty Mo." She was not only a supporting staff member of North American Aviation during the Apollo project. but later worked in the theater arts in California founding member of the North Coast Repertory Theatre. After moving to Montana, she worked in the police department Republican Party Central Committee in Missoula. She also became the Greek life advisor at the University of Montana.

She made instant friends with most people that she met; a fact verified when her "birthday celebrations" often went on for weeks with cards, phone calls and luncheon dates. She was proudly Irish, and luckily had a chance to visit Ireland one year before God called her home.

Her family already misses her terribly including her husband. Ward Stark DeWitt, M.D., her son Sgt. Ward DeWitt, her daughterin-law, Stacey, and her granddaughter, Stephanie. She is also survived by her dear brother, William Witcher of Houston, and her sister, Nancy Besco of Dallas. Her treasured friends are too numerous to list, but they all know who they are, and will understand why they cannot be identified individually.

Because her husband served in the United States Air Force, her ashes are interred at the Western Montana State Veterans Cemetery in Missoula.

Anna "Louise" Dibble, 100

Anna "Louise" Dibble, just turned 100 this past Thanksgiving Day, has passed away of natural causes in Bigfork on Jan. 22, 2018, "and is now in the presence of our Lord."

Louise was born Nov. 23, 1917 in Naches, Washington. She grew up on a farm in Naches, along with eight siblings, who all have preceded her "in standing before Jesus.'

She was an amazing woman and had the kindest heart. She always laughed and giggled and had a great sense of humor.

Having been divorced and left alone to raise three small children, she worked at a fruit packing company for 25 cents per hour to care for her three children.

In her younger years, she was in Yakima, Washington, to shop and the car radio announced the end of World War II. Her car was immediately covered with confetti thrown from the buildings along the street. Leaving Yakima she had another experience we will likely never see. She had to wait for a horse and buggy to pass. They still had the right of way over cars.

She eventually remarried and had two more children. She taught Sunday school at Edmonds Baptist Church in Edmonds, Washington. When she was 58 years old, she took a job at Crista Ministries in Seattle and retired at age 84! Her love for the Lord has been an inspiration to all who knew her. She loved to sing, dance, crochet and do lots of different crafts.

Louise leaves behind sons, Larry Gordon of Everett, Washington, and Chuck Gordon of Anacortes, Washington; and her daughter, Donna Mudie, of Bigfork; also 12 grandchildren, 23 great-grandchildren and 14 great-great-grandchildren. She was truly blessed by all her family.

She was preceded by her husband William Joseph Dibble, and her sons Myron Gordon and Fred Dibble.

I can do all things through Christ who gives me strength. Philippians 4:13

Ruby E. Donahue passed away peacefully on Sunday, Oct. 14, 2018, at her home in Albany, Oregon, with both her son and her favorite caregiver at her bedside. She was just four months shy of her 97th birthday.

Ruby Willa (after author Willa Cather) Ecklund was born in Kiron, Iowa, the daughter of Russell and Erma Ecklund, and she was raised on her parents' farm near Denison, Iowa, with her brother Bill, her identical twin sister Ruth, and her sisters Norma and Winifred "Winnie." Her father grew corn and raised some dairy cows, and her mother tended the house and cooked wonderful meals for the farm workers. Ruby was valedictorian of Denison High School, and at 17 started attending a business school in Omaha, Nebraska. After graduating she began working for an Omaha insurance company, then at 19 she bravely took the train alone to Washington, D.C., to begin working in the steno pool for the Federal Bureau of Investigation. She was an excellent bridge player and was active for many years in the Kalispell Duplicate Bridge Club. Ruby also loved to travel, and she and Ruth took trips to China, Russia, Mexico and throughout Europe. Although hip replacement kept her from the ski slopes in later years, she continued to play golf, tennis and bridge well into her 80s. As part of their 90th birthday celebration, Ruby and Ruth played nine holes of golf in Medford, Oregon!

David Downey, 87

Dr. David Downey, a kind and generous man, adventurer, traveler, and retired, longtime Kalispell dentist, died peacefully at home Friday, July 27, 2018, from anemia. He was 87.

No funeral is planned, but a celebration of his remarkable life will be held at 5 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 22, in Kalispell's Lawrence Park.

He was a loving husband and father, survived by his wife of 63 years, Janet (Hawkins) Downey; a daughter, Gail Steele, of Kalispell, and her children, David and Beth and her husband, Matt Sedlacek: also, four sons and their families. Drs. Dan Downey and Andrea Simonsen and their daughter and son-in-law, Sara and Evan Helle, all of Dillon; Mark Downey and Carol Roberts of Lolo: Paul Downey and Heather Murray and their children, Lucy and Oscar, of Kalispell; and Dr. Rob Downey and Devry Garity, and their children, Griffin and Iris, all of Homer, Alaska. Survivors also include his conservationist, too. He brother, Terry, and his wife, Norma, of Yakima, Washington; brother-inlaw, Bob Hawkins, and wife Mickey, of Missoula; and numerous nieces and nephews.

He was preceded in death by his sister and her husband, Jean and Eric Anderson, formerly of Spokane.

Many people will remember him as a caring dentist who provided extraordinary care but kept his fees low for those that could ill afford it. He was honored twice by the Montana Dental Association as the state's best clinician. For years he taught dental study clubs for others wanting to learn advanced crown and bridge work. He traveled to developing countries numerous times to provide volunteer dentistry or to teach it. In 1968, he volunteered for Softs) once lined the basement ceiling of their home on Kalispell's eastside.

He and Janet also were mountain climbing enthusiasts. He was listed in the first edition of "A Climber's Guide to Glacier National Park" as one of two local authorities (along with Hal Kanzler) on routes in the park. They had many friends in the Glacier Park community. He was a patient, careful climbing leader who took many people up their first mountain. He summited the park's most difficult and highest peaks Mount St. Nicholas and Mount Cleveland, respectively. In addition, he climbed Mount Rainier with Lou Whittaker (co-founder of REI) and attempted British Columbia's iconic Mount Robson with legendary Canadian mountaineer, Hans Gmoser.

Naturally, he was a introduced many people to camping in his beloved mountains, particularly in Jewel Basin east of Kalispell in the Swan Mountains. He and Janet had a tent made from an orange and white parachute. They began leading hikes for the Montana Wilderness Association in the 1960s. Most summer Sundays found them in the mountains where he said he felt closest to God. Of course, he shared his passion for the mountains with his family. Family photographs record him carrying his youngest children in the mountains in his well-worn pack. He later proposed and succeeded in preserving a spectacular grove of old growth ponderosa pines in the Swan Valley.

He was a pilot, too, and member of the Montana Civil Air Patrol mountain search and rescue team.

Great Northern Railroad engineer and a nurse. They had a small house in the railroad neighborhood of Hillyard.

His father's family, most of which is Danish Jurgensens, farmed wheat around the small eastern Washington town of Wilbur. He worked summers there in his teens and was known by his lifelong nickname, "Bud." He remained close to his family and friends there all of his life. It was there that he learned to value hard work. It was there, and in the mountains around Spokane, that he learned to love the outdoors. His father took him hunting there for upland game birds, waterfowl and deer.

He was the first person in his family to attend college. He got his Doctorate of Dental Surgery from the University of Washington in 1955. In 1954, he met the love of his life, Janet Hawkins from Helena. She was a nurse in training at Montana State College. She was an adventurer and skier, too, and the daughter of the prominent physician and philanthropist, Thomas Hawkins.

Dave and Janet married June 12, 1955. They spent their honeymoon camping on Washington's Olympic Peninsula and in Montana's Mission Mountains. Fifty years later they celebrated their anniversary with a float trip with family and friends down the Grand Canyon. In his later years, he particularly enjoyed the company of his family and many, many friends. He never tired of the view of the mountains from the deck of their home.

He had a good run and few regrets, he said in his last days, and for that he was grateful.

Project Hope, bringing advanced healthcare to Ceylon (now Sri Lanka). The next year he accepted an invitation to return for one year to teach dentistry at the University of Peradeniya in Kandy. He and Janet took their five children, the youngest a toddler, through Asia on the way there and Europe on the way home. He wanted others to learn of the larger world, so, after returning to Kalispell, he gave slide shows and talks about Ceylon to children in Kalispell schools.

In addition to his long professional career, he had many interests, most of them outdoors.

He was an avid, lifelong skier, starting at Mount Spokane. He was a member of the Washington State University ski racing team, and later a fixture at Big Mountain above Flathead Valley, particularly when there was fresh powder. He and Janet volunteered to teach for the Kalispell Ski Club. Their family's downhill and cross-country skis (including Head Standards and Miller

He and Janet flew their Cessna 175 to north of the Brooks Mountain Range in Alaska, and south to Mexico's Baja Peninsula.

He cared deeply for people. He was the driving force and organizer in the creation of the City of Kalispell's Lawrence Park. He said he wanted people of all incomes to enjoy that land.

He served on the Kalispell school board. It was his habit to send letters thanking his children's favorite teachers. He believed in the power of education. By example, he and Janet taught their children to love to read.

Many people will remember him for his friendliness. He could — and often did — strike up a conversation with almost anyone. Others may remember him bicycling to and from his office beside Buffalo Hill Golf Course, and home for lunch, not infrequently having invited a patient home to share the meal.

He was born David Wilbur Downey in Spokane on June 16, 1931, the second child of Cliff and Evelyn Downey, a

Willis 'Bill' Doyle, 91

Last call came for longtime Fargo-Moorhead businessman Willis "Bill" Doyle on Saturday, June 30, 2018, at Pioneer House in Fargo, ND. He was 91 years old.

Willis J. Doyle was born Sept. 15, 1926, in Holstein, Iowa, to Clyde and Edna (Kuchel) Doyle. He was the fifth of seven children. He spent his early years in Iowa until the family moved to Kalispell in 1936. He attended Flathead County High School where he excelled as a basketball and track athlete. In the summers he worked as a caddy, which ultimately led to his lifelong enjoyment of golf. It was during this time he met the love of his life, Doris Erickson. They were married in Coeur d' Alene, Idaho, on Aug. 21, 1947. Bill and Doris were together for 63 years until her death in 2010.

Bill's early professional life began with him attending Insurance School in San Francisco, California. He later moved back to Montana to work in management for JC Penney Corporation. His career there took him mostly across the western part of the country. He worked as a troubleshooter of sorts. His specialty was to improve upon underperforming stores. He took pride in working the floor and instilling the importance of customer service and personal relationships in business. This was a trait that served him well throughout his life. Turning around stores led to many moves for Bill and Doris over the years; call it a reward for being successful.

work and family life; ing beside them on a daily basis. In retirement he made time to stop in and check "how's business." He was still quick with a joke or a fact right up until the day he passed away.

Bill was a member of the Elks, Lions and Eagles clubs. He and Doris would spend many weekends out dancing. In most of the cities he lived in he was a member of the local country club, with Moorhead Country Club being his last. He was an accomplished golfer, placing near the top in many club tournaments (he won in Chinook). He also enjoyed hunting and fishing, especially trips to Lake Of The Woods. Many times you would find him watching an out- at Riverside Cemetery, door or hunting program on television. He was an NDSU Team Maker and like many he loved the Bison. Visiting with the many NDSU students and alumni at Chub's was a common occurrence. His favorite pro football team was the Miami Dolphins and he liked watching sports in general. This included following his kids and grandchildren's many activities over the years. He would still inquire how Mark finished in local golf tournaments and how grandkids concerts went. Bill and Doris loved to travel; going to Florida and Arizona in the winter and Montana and Canada in the summer to see family. Family was first and foremost to Bill.

Ramstad and Erin (Matt) Welle; great-grandchileven work- dren, Avery and Kellan Ramstad, and Declan, Camden and Kye Welle; siblings, Don Doyle and Joe Kucera; special friend, Jeannette Evensen and many more nieces and nephews. The family also lived in Deer Lodge and Chinook, Nampa, Idaho, and Minot, North Dakota. In 1969, now working for the Gambles Corp., Bill moved the family to Moorhead, Minnesoa. He ran the Tempo store for many years in the former Holiday Mall. After a short time in Menomonie, Wisconsin, they moved back to the F-M area.

In 1980, deciding they wanted to work for themselves, Bill and Doris bought Chub's Pub in Fargo. He enjoyed going to work every day and interacting with customers, staff and vendors. Bill worked well into his late 70s, never losing his acumen or sense of humor. An early riser, it was not unusual to see his car in the parking lot at 6 a.m. He often worked the bartending shift from 8 a.m. to 9am. He would run his hand across the bar each day making sure it was spotless before the locks turned open. If it wasn't, he would jokingly ask the closing bartender if "we ran out of towels last night." Even with a wink and a smile you knew he was serious. He took pride in what he did and was able to balance Holidays and Sunday he looked forward to, not only because he was pretty good in the kitchen. but he loved the activity and spending time around loved ones.

His smile was infectious. His generosity, wit and laugh could fill a stadium. He made being friendly, intelligent and respected look so effortless. Qualities that are easy to say about a man, but Bill truly lived and personified them. For that he will be missed by many.

Steven Drent, 63

Steven Drent, 63, of Kalispell, passed away of complications during a surgery Wednesday, Dec. 19 in Kalispell.

He was born to Pieter and Therese Drent in Whitefish on June 27, 1955. Steve grew up the only boy with his four sisters Jane, Wilma, Marilyn and Renee.

Many men seek to be good fishermen. Few succeed as Steve Drent did. He not only caught fish but many great friendships as he explored the Flathead Valley he called home. He bonded with many over a shared love of fishing and hunting. He anchored with Kathy Lengstorf for a while and hauled in two children, Bryce (Tina) Provo and Benjamin (Hailey) Drent. He developed deep love and patience for his children and grandchildren. The minnows that jumped into his boat later were John, Jack, Charles,

Elizabeth, and Benjamin from Bryce Provo, and Caleb and Cooper from Ben Drent. Near the end of his voyage, he landed great love in the relationship he found with Kari Mackin. She brought him joy and as they sailed into the sunset together the wind died too soon.

The memorial for Steve will be from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 29 at Herron Park.

We will carry his memory in our hearts and are comforted to know that he is with Someone who loves fishermen very much.

"Jesus said to them, 'Bring some of the fish that you have just caught." (John 21:10)

We can't wait to go fishing with you again Steve.
